

American Model United Nations

Historical Security Council

Submitted by: The Republic of Zaire

The Security Council emphasizes the necessity for peace and with recent developments in the Middle East, this body would request a return to talks between Iraq and Kuwait as a sign of goodwill following the recent military build up on the border between these two sovereign nations. There are unresolved issues between these two parties that the United Nations Security Council would like to see settled through peaceful and diplomatic means. This body further emphasizes that military force should be reserved as a last resort, and the movement of 100,000 members of the Republican Guard towards the Iraqi-Kuwaiti border is seen as provoking armed conflict.
