Recalling Article 28 of the Convention on the Rights of the Child, which recognizes educational rights of every child, 2

Keeping in mind that the World Programme of Action on Youth (WPAY) identifies women and young girls 3 as a priority area,

Emphasizing the WPAY's action proposals on the priority area of women and young girls of discrimination, 5 education, health, employment and violence, 6

Highlighting the fact that the negative socialization of girls can lead to a lifetime of exclusion, as well as low self-esteem and decreased educational opportunities,

Bearing in mind the goal of greater participation of women in politics and governance at the national, 9 regional and international levels, 10

Taking into consideration the World Bank study that showed additional years of school enrollment decrease the risk of an unplanned pregnancy for girls and young women, 12

Noting with regret that 80 percent of adolescent deaths due to violence occur in girls 15 and 19 years of age,

Noting with concern that more than half of all sexual assaults worldwide take place against girls younger 14 than 16, 15

Recognizing the impact Title IX in the United States had on bridging the access to fair and equal education,

Further concerned that women and girls in marginalized groups are at a higher risk of experiencing negative 17 effects of such marginalization, 18

Noting that female youth between the ages of 15-24 are among the most negatively impacted groups in regard to armed conflict,

Recognizing that employment of women is one of the quickest and most efficient ways to enrich a country 21 and improve the standard of living, 22

- 1. Recommends that a United Nations database be created by cross-referencing information in publicly available databases such as Minorities At Risk (MAR), Ethnologue, the Joshua Project, and Ethnic Power Relations (EPR), that would:
 - (a) Help to inform on the occurrence of genocide;
- (b) Provide data on the presence of marginalized groups, particularly marginalized youth and young 27 28 women;
 - (c) Inform on where relevant bodies should focus their efforts;
- 2. Endorses the implementation of extracurricular programs as leadership and skill-building activities for 30 youth: 31
- (a) Activities imitating professional activities and promoting life skills, such as modeling the United 32 Nations; 33
 - 3. Recommends that Member States allow for active voting at age 18;

- 5. Encourages schools, both public and private, to support youth sports programs and other after-school activities for women:
 - (a) Urges relevant actors to expand existing programs specifically for young women;
- 42 (b) Recommends the partnership between Member States and local organizations to implement these 43 programs;
- (c) Encourages specific programs aimed at including women and young girls in Science, Technology, Engineering and Math (STEM) fields;
- 6. Urges Member States to expand opportunities for women to enter the available workforce in the public sphere:
- (a) Invites non-governmental organizations focused on reducing child unemployment to expand efforts with the support of the United Nations, such as Injaz Al-Arab;
- 50 (b) Requests the creation of a United Nations firm under the jurisdiction of Economic and Finan-51 cial Affairs Council (ECOFIN) titled the "Working Offers to Kids Enterprise" (WOKE) that primarily focuses on 52 providing employment opportunities to underemployed or unemployed youth, which would;
 - (i) Seek economic and professional opportunities for youth between ages 15-24;
 - (ii) Prioritize impoverished families and young women that could benefit from an additional source of income;
 - (iii) Act as a contractor for these youth to avoid abrupt income disruption;
 - (c) Because the unemployment of women can contribute to the cycle of poverty, this resolution will;
 - (i) Urge Member States to address the role of gender inequality within these issues;
 - (ii) Foster greater collaboration between Member States and relevant NGOs and/or governmental organizations to alleviate this disparity through various frameworks, which include but are not limited to;
 - A. Those already in existence (i.e. UNICEF, UN Women);
 - 7. Encourages Member States and other relevant actors to expand scholarship programs for women to attend post-secondary institutions, vocational programs, and other opportunities;
- 8. Requests that governments ensure safe travel for female youth to educational and vocational opportunities through inclusion of security forces to deter radicalized non-state actors from terrorizing youth populations:
 - (a) This system would look different depending on the level of risk present for young women in certain areas;
- 9. Calls upon Member States to sanction robust maternity leave programs or flexible work schedules for young mothers or expecting young mothers to reduce the conflict between motherhood and vocation.
