American Model United Nations
General Assembly Second Committee

SUBJECT OF RESOLUTION: Women in development

SUBMITTED TO: The General Assembly Second Committee

The General Assembly Second Committee,

Reaffirming the great strides the United Nations has already made on the topic of women in development in the 2028 System-Wide Strategy on Gender Parity,

Aware of public reliance on trusted press coverage to accurately relay reliable information and addressing the lack of confidence in previous conditional international humanitarian aid and development efforts,

Reaffirming the need to respect state sovereignty, specifically local cultural and religious norms when addressing women’s development,

Emphasizing that prioritization of women’s economic development, including expansion of funding in women’s education, will in turn support the nation’s economic development,

Encouraging the expansion of female independence through access to income streams and entrepreneurship opportunities,

Recognizing the impact public services and infrastructure have on opportunities for women, particularly in rural areas,

Further emphasizing that existing gender inequalities are exacerbated by times of crisis, such as the COVID-19 Pandemic, leading to a backslide in rights gained by women such as limited access to healthcare and increase in domestic violence,

Desires to furthering the discussion on discrimination against women through open dialogue with the Commission on the Status of Women (CSW),

1. Recommends further action to address gender representation disparities in the Office of Information and Communication Technology and the Department of Safety and Security which have less than 25 percent of female representation when compared to other United Nations organizations;

2. Encourages the creation of regional media campaigns to improve trust and confidence in women’s economic development programs:
   (a) Requests that campaigns overseen by regional bodies cooperate with local leaders and women to ensure complete transparency and local participation;

3. Suggests the creation of Regional Women’s Development Bodies to oversee and implement international women’s economic development initiatives:
   (a) Request representatives from their respective states and regions, overseers from NGO’s, and observers from the general international community to ensure that both international economics programs and local customs are considered;
   (b) Encourages intergovernmental funding programs like the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund may potentially fund and enact policies regionally;

4. Recommends the implementation of women’s education to improve industry participation in collaboration with the Generation Equality Action Coalitions by:
   (a) Suggesting the establishment of STEM and entrepreneurship education programs through Technology and Innovation for Gender Equality Action Coalition and implementation of mentoring programs like She Innovates Global Programme;
(b) Encouraging all willing and able Member States to invest in financial literacy programs and microcredit loan initiatives to help women achieve economic independence;

(i) Promoting female personal or shared ownership of land and capital to promote investments in new businesses, ventures and entrepreneurship;

(ii) Ensuring that there exist robust auditing programs to prevent predatory loans and debt trap schemes;

5. Requests Member States to work together and provide frameworks for women-driven industries and peer-to-peer markets to promote and improve economic independence by:

(a) Growing private and public industries to connect women with resources necessary for cottage industries and purchase surplus homemade goods for profit;

(b) Promoting the establishment of female apprenticeship and job shadow programs to extend work experience opportunities to rural and urban female students;

(c) Implementing regional committees to oversee payments, prevent exploitative work practices, and ensure that women receive a full and fair wage for their work;

6. Discourages workplace discrimination and advocates greater female industry and political leadership by:

(a) Promoting the creation of female business and management programs in higher education institutions to improve female leadership representation;

(b) Calling for legislative protections and/or quotas for female chief executive officers (CEOs) and board of director members to ensure that the female voice is heard and considered in employment and promotion decisions;

(c) Supporting collaborations with Equality Now and Women’s Environment and Development Organization (WEDO) to recommend legal frameworks that protect women’s right to participate in organizational leadership;

7. Suggests the use of humanitarian aid and United Nations System Organizations to support women’s economic development by:

(a) Contacting non-governmental organizations (NGOs) such as the Association for Women’s Rights in Development (AWID) to influence policy and practice to achieve gender justice and women’s human rights by;

(i) Implementing and sustaining key services, even in times of crisis, that are prepared to serve women by ensuring essential healthcare services and domestic violence support services within the confines of Member States’ individual laws;

(b) Recommending collaboration with the United Nations Environment Programme (UNEP) and to create relief funds that aid women who are disproportionately impacted by natural and manmade disasters in order to ensure their participation in the economy;

8. Emphasizes the importance of open dialogue between nations by promoting cooperation between nations, especially on the ground of tradition, culture, and religion to better understand the role of women in individual Member States.
