

AMUN Conference Alert

22–25 November 2025

28 August 2025

Last Day to Opt-In to AMUN's Print Simulation Guide

Greetings from the AMUN Secretariat. As your preparations for the 2025 Conference begin, here is a reminder to request or decline a print copy of AMUN's Model UN in a Box simulation guide before tonight's deadline.

What's in the Simulation Guide?

AMUN's Simulation Guide—also known as Model UN in a Box—is available to all schools registered for the 2025 Conference. Developed by AMUN staff, the guide is designed to help you prepare your students for Model UN conferences, with both general lesson plans and AMUN-specific training materials.

The printed book includes the following chapters:

- Teaching Model UN in the Classroom
- Caucusing and Consensus Building
- Decision Making and Documents
- Rules of Procedure
- Running an Effective Dais and Training Dais Staff

We encourage schools that already have a copy to consider opting out of receiving another one to help reduce environmental impact and printing costs.

In addition, the digital supplement (2021 edition) is available separately and includes materials for running three full practice simulations:

- General Assembly Third Committee
- Commission on the Status of Women
- Security Council 2021

To opt in or opt out of receiving a new print copy of Model UN in a Box, please complete this short survey by the end of the day today.

To download the digital supplement from our online store, please email mail@amun.org for a complementary download link.

98 Countries Available for Registration

Each year, we make it a priority to secure representation for as many UN Member States as possible. The more countries that participate, the more accurately our Conference reflects the structure and spirit of the United Nations. A list of currently available countries is posted online, and you can register for any open Member State directly through our website.
